News

There is excitement in our community as teachers have begun preparing their classrooms for the First Day of School. These dedicated men and women are grateful that our school now has air conditioning! In previous years, the late summer heat made learning conditions very difficult, and our students did not achieve their full potential in the first several weeks of the year. Last year's improvements to our building – heating, ventilation, cooling, and electrical – have made August and September as productive as any other time of the year. We are thankful to those who have helped make this possible! And we continue to give thanks to God for the ways in which he has blessed our school family.

From the Leadership

Father David Schalk, Pastor

"The good news is that Catholic schools throughout the Diocese of Columbus continue to grow! Attendance is up in almost all of our schools – an encouraging trend for our Church and for the broader community. More and more young people are being exposed to our beautiful Catholic religion alongside their learning of science, math, reading, and social studies. We are educating young people in a holistic way, giving them instruction not only for their mind, but also for their heart and soul. In other words, we are forming saints who can and will make a positive impact in today's world."
